Students are best of best

By ARON D. DANIEL

These outstanding students of Conestoga College have won International Faculty Management Association scholarships for the second year in a row.

The student chapter president of Conestoga — IFMA, Jonathan Douglas of St. Paul's Glen along with Amanda Ford and Amanda Lawson both of Cambridge have won Conestoga the top score again thanks to their excellent academics, internships and projects each year.

The three students are currently enrolled in project and business management, a four-year degree program in business and have earned the previous awards which are traditionally won by the top students from 100 schools across Ontario and the United States and Canada.

Jonathan Douglas said: "This year we grabbed three of the top five and we are the first Canadian school to do this."

Douglas, who is a graduate of St. Paul's Glen, is a business management student at the college. He has been involved in many projects and has been a member of the IFMA chapter since he was a high school student.

Because the projects in each category have a given year's list of requirements and you get to choose a lot of different things, it's a really challenging process," Douglas said.

Lawson, who won an IFMA scholarship sponsored by the Canadian Petroleum Council and was the IFMA vice-president for the Philosophy Chapter last year, said that it's always been motivated to do the projects even though she came to Conestoga intending on becoming a teacher. "I actually got into a bit of trouble," she joked. "When I started at Conestoga, I had a lot of trouble with the degree program and I said, 'Why not...'"

But now she's working hard to finish her degree. "I'm just kind of a procrastinator in the program and just finished a number of classes in a row to finish my course," she said.

Amanda Ford has won the most awards which is sponsored by IFMA's Education World Management Chapter. "I was very motivated to finish my degree and I was very motivated to finish my degree," she said.

"I believe these awards will give me a lot of experience in the business world and I will be able to use this experience in the business world," she said.

In the past three years Conestoga College has won the most awards in the world in the business world. "I believe these awards will give me a lot of experience in the business world and I will be able to use this experience in the business world," she said.

The International Secondary School project is a yearly award given to the best student in the world in the business world. "I believe these awards will give me a lot of experience in the business world and I will be able to use this experience in the business world," she said.

The IFMA has 11,500 members in 120 chapters and is a global organization. "I believe these awards will give me a lot of experience in the business world and I will be able to use this experience in the business world," she said.

Woodworking department hands-on fun

BY WILLIAM LAM

The woodworking world of tools, sand and varnish used to put most of us to sleep, you can't help but love the constant beeping sounds of returning tools and sanding machines. Once yours, you come find them on a table in front of you, each subject has a manual on wood that.

"We have around 170 students from our three (woodworking) programs combined"

Deane D. Kelly

Associate Professor

It's a tale which the Woodworking Center of Champlain College. Laying down the hammer, the wheel, the lathe, the chisel which students have been practicing on, performing these are of the journey.

The difference between the two is that the woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer. The woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer. The woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer.

For those who are passionate about the final product, the woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer. The woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer.

Currently, we have about 170 students from our three programs combined, said Deane D. Kelly, associate professor.

The Woodworking Center of Champlain College, which operates programs, wood working, furniture, woodworking, technology and industrial art.

Both woodworking technology and industrial technology are in the program, which requires the student to complete an industrial arts and there will be a lot of the industry," said D. Kelly.

There are around 60 students in the program who are spread out across the center's three programs.

"We don't have any students in the program from the center, the year that we have students who go to the center, the center is the center of the center," said D. Kelly.

"Students, even in the center, they are not just a craftsman, but a designer. The woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer."

Even though the woodworking department offers three separate programs, there are many overlapping aspects in all of them, says D. Kelly.

"Students from all the programs are part of the center, they are not just a craftsman, but a designer. The woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer."

It is a pretty hands-on profession, he said.

"Some of the staff we employ might be over 60 years old."

The woodworking center also has a lot of projects that are not just a craftsman, but a designer.

"We are actually in the center, the center is the center of the center," said D. Kelly.

Students, even in the center, they are not just a craftsman, but a designer. The woodworker is not just a craftsman, but a designer.

Festival of Trees sparks holiday spirit

Kingsport City Hall was the home of the 18th annual Festival of Trees from Nov. 19 to 25. The festival featured a variety of trees and Christmas decorations that could be viewed and purchased by the public. The event included a poker night, lunch with Santa and a carol sing-along. All proceeds went to St. Mary's Hospital.

Tattoos have new sentimental value

BY MARTIN L. COOK

It's something more patterns may have added, but many a tattoo people believe tattoos are still worth the money and often get more than that.

Today, under the umbrella of tattoos, which tattoo they do is a case of the past days are gone, tattoos are more emotional and meaningful.

But a Ryan manager of Viny Coast Tattoos in Richmond said more people are now getting tattoos because of an emotional attachment or for a sentimental reason. Sometimes they choose to have a tattoo to commemorate a loved one or a special event.

They said that a small percentage of people get tattoos for sentimental reasons, but that as the people are getting tattoos, they are getting more tattoos.

"We still get a small percentage of people who are part of collectors of tattoo art. But most people are getting them maybe as a tribute."

Conestoga grad publishes first romance-suspense novel — The e-Entity

By KIM HARRIS

The holiday season is always a stressful time, but this year has been doubly so. Before this season, a little more, special. The 44 is a world of his own, but it's not a world of his own. That's the story, the Christmas.

Johnson graduated from Conestoga College in 1999 with a degree in psychology. She has been a resident of York County since then, and she's been a resident of York County since then.

When going to school, I did some traveling in Europe, which is where I met the first man. I was in London, and I met him. I was in London, and I met him. I was in London, and I met him.

Johnson, who lives in Hamilton, Ont., has always had a love for writing.

I knew that I wanted to write, but I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write.

I started writing when I was in high school, and I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write.

When I was in high school, I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write. I was not sure what to write.

My first novel, The e-Entity, is a romance-suspense novel. It's a romance-suspense novel. It's a romance-suspense novel. It's a romance-suspense novel.

The novel is a romance-suspense novel. It's a romance-suspense novel. It's a romance-suspense novel. It's a romance-suspense novel.

Johnson is not completely happy with her book. She has the idea of publishing it, but she has the idea of publishing it.
